Cultural practices in the United Kingdom

British people are generally quite reserved and they do not show their emotions openly. This does not mean that they are unfriendly. They are private people who respect others. They believe that it is important not to interfere in others' beliefs or business. Manners are very important. For example, it is considered rude to be late for a meeting or to jump a queue in a shop or a bank. It is also considered impolite to talk with your mouth full of food or to put your elbows on the table when you are eating. When you meet someone you do not know, you should shake hands with the person and introduce yourself. British people don't usually kiss one another in public unless they are good friends or members of the same family.
